

Navigate the entire process of buying or selling your home without incurring high legal fees.

A home is a financial asset and more: it's a place to live and raise children; it's a plan for the future; it's an investment in your community. To become a homebuyer, you need to know where and how to begin the homebuying process. Selling your home can be exciting, but it takes work. You'll need to fix all those little problems you've let go for so many years, and you need to decide if you're going to try to sell your own home or use a professional real estate broker.

This kit answers questions about:

- Loans and mortgages
- What can you afford
